

LAMENT FOR MR HENRY PURCELL

Jennifer Fowler

for flute, cor anglais, clarinet, viola

Duration: 8 minutes

NOTE: Accidentals are added to each note which needs it. Any note without an accidental is always a natural, whatever is happening elsewhere.

On the whole, the groupings of notes in 2's, 3's, 4's and so on, should be perceptible audibly.

LAMENT FOR MR HENRY PURCELL

Jennifer Fowler

As a rememberance of Purcell's early death in 1695 at the age of 36, I have chosen to weave a piece around some fragments taken from Dido's Lament. The piece is scored for flute, cor anglais, clarinet and viola, and in the first section, which explores the first 3 notes of Dido's Lament (a rising minor 3rd), the instruments wind together within a restricted range, and with a restricted order of notes. The cor anglais and clarinet are in canon. Not until the end of this section is the 3rd note of Dido's Lament heard to repeat and then drop a semitone, to conclude Dido's first phrase.

The music then expands into a free-er, less restricted range of notes and within this are references to the rhythm of Dido's words: "Remember me". This reference becomes clearer and ends the piece, after a slower section which relates to the chorus following Dido's death.

There is a very long tradition of composers doing homage to other composers by quoting fragments of existing works and making something new out of it. I find it particularly interesting to cross the centuries and try to find a stylistic language with which to reconcile quite different musical traditions.
