Eos: The Greek goddess of the dawn, the Roman Aurora. In Homer she is yellow-robed and rosy-fingered and drives her chariot across the sky each morning. Apollo's favourite attendant, the fair goddess of dawn, whose rose-tipped fingers opened wide the eastern gates of pearl, and who then flashed across the sky to announce her master's coming. Of the beautiful young men she carried off to be her lovers Cephalus, Orion, and Tithonus, by whom she had a son, Memnon. It has been suggested that such legends are a euphemism for death, life being at its lowest ebb at dawn then it is not a 'lack of warmth' but the 'presence of non-warmth'.

One personification of the dawn is Minerva (or Athene), derived from Daphne from the Sanskrit Dahana, or ahana (meaning "the light of daybreak") impersonating the illuminating and knowledge giving light of the sky, for in Sanskrit the same word also means "to wake" and "to know".

Eos was commissioned by KölnMusik for Bachfest 1999.

Composed between October and December 1998 the first performance was given by Rohan de Saram and took place during Bachfest on 3rd April 1999 in Köln.

Dedicated to Rohan de Saram and Dr. Annette Wolde.
